

Paul Revere's A-Mazing Ride

Paul Revere undertook a covert nighttime ride on April 18, 1775, slipping past British patrols to warn colonial leaders that British troops were marching toward Lexington and Concord. His mission helped alert militia forces—the Minutemen—to be ready, playing a crucial role in the opening moments of the American Revolution. Help Paul Revere find his way through the maze to sound the alarm.

